The Oxley Glory Stage 2 Cricket team has enjoyed extraordinary success this past season, defeating hometown rivals Chevalier College convincingly on Saturday 13 March to claim the title of Grand Final Winners. They have demonstrated unparalleled sportsmanship, comradery and humility over their 13-game season, culminating in remaining undefeated! The team is made up of: Sam Harwood., Will Torr, Fred Hamblin, Aston Macdonald, Myles Magill, $UFKLH &RVJUL ä &KDUOLH 5\DQ +DPLVK 0XUUD \ 3LQ 2DN PHW ZLWK WZR WHDP PHPEHUV 0\OHV discuss all things cricket. Looking to the Future

Last week I spoke at the Moss Vale 3 UREXV & OXE DERXW through Covid-19 and the lessons learned. My favourite word for 2020 became reimagination as there was so much we had to completely re-imagine for 2020 in a Covid-19 environment - everything from learning, to holding events and how we engaged with the community. This presented both expected and unexpected outcomes - some good and some not so good. As an Executive we continue to discuss how we can take the lessons from 2020 and move forward to further strengthen what we do at Oxley. With the lessons learnt from Covid-19, I believe we will see many changes to education in the coming years.

As part of Oxley's commitment to embrace innovation, be at the leading edge of education and for the development of our new Strategic Intent, the College began the process of drawing on key stakeholder voices. This process will focus on our existing core capacities, strengths and successes to envision possible futures and identify opportunities to leverage our strengths and move forward.

On Tuesday evening, we made a memorable step forward in this process

Bek Duyckers, this session provided the opportunity for us to begin connecting diverse voices through a strengths focussed, generative approach and in doing so we created conversations that enable positive change. This process allows us to work in true partnership to be able to co-construct our future. Oxley College values the voices of many and the process towards developing our students will graduate and so we need to be focussed on the skills, abilities and mindsets they will require as they enter the world beyond school.

It was heart warming to hear about our existing core capacities and what parents valued about Oxley College. As parents, I imagine that you remember too how it felt to watch over learning cycles, balance wellbeing and exercise, and most of all to encourage your children with hope and optimism.

For most of us, being at home also provided permission to return to some of the activities that we may have been previously too busy to do: gardening, board games, jigsaw puzzles and most of all, reading. At assemblies this year, I am using visual images more than ever to keep us connected with our core values, with our important themes, with the integral ideas that will keep us going when things get tough. Which aspects of education have changed the most since you became involved in teaching?

The use of technology and an understanding of the importance of teachers working collaboratively. When I started my degree, it certainly wasn't an expectation that you used a computer to publish your assignments. It was only in later years of my degree that I purchased a desktop - it was a beast! How we access and present information has changed immeasurable since these days of the 1990's.

What's the most memorable aspect of your own education?

Completing an individual research project for Geography when I was in Year 10. I was obsessed with playing golf at the time, and so I chose to study the drainage systems

What have your initial perceptions of Oxley been so far?

My initial perceptions of Oxley are that this school works like a community where everybody is deeply invested in everyone's learning.

I have become involved in education in Oxley

I was always very interested in learning and I always liked to read and did so all throughout my life. I started teaching piano lessons when I was twelve years old, and have been teaching music and languages ever since. I have really enjoyed working with prac teachers

Which aspects of education have changed you the most since you have become a teacher?

That being said I haven't been involved in education for a very long time the thing that has changed the most has been the technology students being able to express themselves in new way that is best suited to them.

What as the most memorable aspect of your education?

The individual teachers that have left a impression on me most of those educators have been highly relatable for example they are more interested in building relationships with their students and sharing their passion and that is something that I try to achieve.

What traits do you most admire in a person?

I like someone who is empathetic and open someone who is willing to give anything a try are inspirational to me and who are not afraid to be themselves.

What skill would you like to master?

Being able to store languages in my brain and being able to communicate with people in their own languages

Do you have any special hidden talents?

I have mastered getting rid of sub vocalisation which is when you are reading usually you can only read as fast as you can talk but if you no longer have to sub vocalize then you can read as fast as your eyes can move.
